THE STATE, PRESENT AND FUTURE.

The future of the State looks brighter than it has been for a decade preceding the present time. A feeling of confidence has taken possession of the public mind unusual in Nevada. Whether the confidence expressed comes from a natural buoyancy of feeling that is peculiar to the climate at this season, or is derived from facts in sight can be ascertained only by a personal review of the situation. The crushing system of government in the State, which is a legacy given by the Southern Pacific Company for all time to the people, is not one of the facts that will be taken into the account. The work in the State of the Southern Pacific hiring and political boss is another fact that will be excluded. But there are matters that may lead to a proper understanding of the cause that gives promise of a better future. The work of the Boston Mining and Ore Reduction Company, which is changing and remodeling the former H. H. Beck milling and smelting property at Reno, is having a local effect, and is making a favorable impression upon miners and those identified with mining enterprise. The extension of the N. C. O. railway northerly in California has given work to men, some of whom would have been unemployed. The extension of the road has not only made a local impression, but has had a tendency to create a conviction in other parts of the State that the world is not finished. The product of the borax plants of John M. Fulton and Charles Taylor in northwestern Nevada and southeastern Oregon, which is shipped to market from Winnemucca, in Humboldt county, is doing much to help out good feeling and confidence in the future. The paper mill that will be built in the near future at Floriston, about twenty miles west from Reno, gives assurance that enterprise still lives within sight of the State. The electric power plant that will be constructed in connection with the paper mill at Floriston, intended to furnish electric power for the Comstock, is the most reassuring enterprise that has made an appearance for two decades. The late discovery of an ore body ten feet in width in unexplored ground in the Comstock lode, which shows well by assay value, has had a tendency to elevate spirits on the Comstock and make good feeling in the west. The assurance of good crops and high prices in the future for beef and mutton inspires the stockmen and ranchmen.

Reports from all over the State about its industries are favorable and indicate that the State is entering upon a future that will give employment to the people, which will make homes happy and bring contentment that will aid to elevate life and support oppression from other sources. The question often asked in the last ten or fifteen years—Are we at the bottom?—may never be used again, except as a reminder of dark days that have passed with their discouraging accompaniments. The tendency of all business in the State was downward in those years; but there is almost an assurance that conditions have changed and a bright business future will relieve the State; and if the future should prove all the present indicates, the people should care for it, as it will be a result of the innate value of the State's native resources, and not a bestowal by those who have injured it.

DISSATISFACTION OF THE WORKERS.

Strikes and strikers claim public attention. The wage-earners do not appear satisfied with the wages they receive. There is a rumor that the tin-plate mills, most of which are owned by one concern, will close down to avoid a strike. There are forty thousand men employed in these mills, twenty-five thousand of whom are skilled workmen and fifteen thousand are laborers. The unsettled condition of the wage-earners is not calculated to improve the country with the idea that the workers are receiving any benefit from any increase there is in business, or from the profit derived from increased sales at home and abroad.

The Peace Congress at The Hague will not agree upon any terms for armament. Germany will vote against all proposals made by Russia to disarm. Notice has been served by Germany's representatives that the Anglo-American terms for arbitration of differences between nations will be agreed to by that power.

ROMANCE AND DEATH.

Bob Patterson, a Piute Indian, Found Dead Near Reno.

Stark and cold in death, with face and limbs distorted as they were in the last convulsions, the remains of Indian Bob Patterson were found last evening beside the fence which runs along the Virginia road, not far from Ede's ranch. A passer-by who saw the body drove to town and notified the authorities, who sent a dead wagon out and brought the body to town. It now lies at Perkins' undertaking parlors, awaiting the autopsy, which is almost certain to prove death by poisoning.

Indian Bob Patterson was a youth of twenty years, a giant in stature and the pride of both Piutes and Washoes, for he was of mixed blood. He was known to the farmers of the Truckee Valley as an honest, sober and hard-working fellow, one in whom dependence might be placed, for he was not addicted to the deplorable vice of drink, which is threatening to eradicate the race. A large number of Indians flocked into town, manifesting much interest in the case. By dint of persistent questioning was learned the following strange story of Indian rivalry and love:

Nearly a year ago Bob Patterson, whose tribal name was Oona Merker, which when translated means "the strong one," became enamored of a pretty Piute maiden of sixteen summers and courted her after the manner of his tribe. The course of love, as is usual in such affairs, ran smoothly for a time, for the girl did not resent his attentions. But there were other handsome and ardent young bucks who aspired to the hand of charming Unioke, and who were equally persistent in suing for her favor. Unioke received them kindly, but apparently favored Oona, although, with the skill of a modern coquette, she refrained from answering all direct proposals of marriage. Bitterly arose and Bob was severely rebuffed by the less favored Piute, who could not see that his love was nearly, if not quite, as unsuccessful as their own.

Yesterday morning "Bob" and Unioke were seen walking together. Bob was apparently very earnest in his conversation with her, and here the romance ends. A few hours later he was found by the roadside, dead.

Was the Indian poisoned by some angry rival, or, weary of following an unsuccessful love, did he eat the deadly wild parsnip, a poisonous weed chosen by all Indians when bent upon suicide, and thus end his life? Nearly all of his tribesmen who are familiar with the circumstances suspect foul play, but all known facts point toward suicide. Here is a mystery worthy the investigation of a Sherlock Holmes, but as it is only a Piute who has met this strange end, the entire affair will no doubt be forgotten in less than a week, even by those who had interest enough to ask what Indian was dead.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefited from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework and is as well as she ever was. Free trial bottle of this Great Discovery at S. J. Hodgkinson's Drug Store. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.00.

Having a Great Run on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Manager Martin, of the Pierson drug store, informs us that he is having a great run on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He sells five bottles of that medicine to one of any other kind, and it gives great satisfaction. In these days of la grippe there is nothing like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to stop the cough, heal up the sore throat and lungs and give relief in a very short time. The sales are growing, and all who try it are pleased with its prompt action.—South Chicago Daily Columnist. For sale by Wm. Pinniger.

Abalone Soup.

Everybody invited to be on hand at 11 o'clock A. M. Friday and partake of some delicious abalone soup, a dish never before served in Nevada. Come one, come all, at Thyges.

Harry Davis has just received a case of Fontellas. Try one of The M... cigars, made especially for Harry.

Preparing for the Fourth.

A lively interest is manifested among the people of Reno regarding the coming Independence Day celebration. Every one is pleased with the elaborate program of the day.

The executive committee has done its work well, appointing sub-committees eager and well adapted to carry out the tasks assigned to them.

The finance committee reports $359.75 already subscribed, $265.75 of which has been paid in cash, and all of the business men have not yet been approached.

Posters and placards announcing the celebration and giving the program are being sent into the surrounding country and neighboring towns. With the special rates so generously given by the V. & T. railway management, no doubt great numbers will come in from the south to see the great relay race.

HIS FIRST REQUEST.

A Scotch farmer, celebrated in his neighborhood for his immense strength and skill in athletic exercises, very frequently had the pleasure of contending with people who came to try their strength against him. Lord D., a great pugilistic amateur, went from London on purpose to fight the athletic Scot. The latter was working in an inclosure at a little distance from his house when the noble lord arrived. His lordship tied his horse to a tree and addressed the farmer. "Friend, I have heard marvelous reports of your skill and have come a long way to see which of us two is the better wrestler."

The Scotchman, without answering, seized the nobleman, pitched him over the hedge and then set about working again. When Lord D. got up, "Well," said the farmer, "have you anything to say to me?"

"No," replied his lordship, "but perhaps you'd be good enough to throw me my horse."—Public Opinion.

Foiled the Passengers.

A man sitting in an electric car the other day pulled out of his pocket his handkerchief, when out sprang what seemed to be a snake. It wriggled and jumped around on the floor at a great rate. The ladies screamed and huddled together, the men made for it, and one stamped his foot on it, but upon examination it proved to be a copper wound bass piano wire, which the man with the handkerchief had coiled up in his pocket and, having become uncoiled, jumped to the floor. How the women looked daggers at him after they became quieted down was a caution. He soon got off, we presume to put it in the piano that needed it, not because of the looks of the women.—Salem Gazette.

Once Was Enough.

This is one of General Miles' stories. In the Confederate army, Longstreet's corps was making a night march. About 4 o'clock in the morning, when every one was worn out, a Georgia regiment stopped. A Georgia soldier put his rifle up against the tents on the other side of where Longstreet was.

"Well," he said, "this is pretty hard—to fight all day and march all night. But I suppose I can do it for love of my country." He continued, "I can go hungry, I can fight, if need be, I can die for my country, because I love my country. But when this war is over I'll be blown if I'll ever love another country!"—Woman's Journal.

Put Out as a Feeler.

Mr. Willingham—What would you do, Mr. Rockington, if I were to ask you for your daughter in marriage?

Mr. Rockington—Well, that is something that I hardly want to answer off-hand.

Mr. Willingham—I'm glad of that. Now, if I could be sure that you would not answer with your foot I would feel free to go ahead.—Chicago News

In the year 1806 a party of crusaders brought a number of rose bushes home to England with them from Damascus, and these flourished so well that in a short time the beautiful flowers were to be found everywhere throughout the country.

Very Plain Reasons Why

We Sell Cheapest

Claims of supremacy are ineffectual unless they are backed by solid arguments that establish absolute facts. Exaggeration flows easily and smoothly from many retail sources. We could advertise wildly and frantically, but crediting the public with intelligence and powers of discrimination, we prefer to print our modest statement, and calmly sustain them with the most logical of reasons, for in 'ance:

No retailer in the world buys goods more advantageously than the Novelty Dry Goods Store Co. Frequently we may not secure staple articles for less money than others pay, but we in variably sell cheaper

BECAUSE WE ARE SATISFIED WITH SMALLER PROFITS

The actual amount paid for goods is only a part of their cash. Every man and woman understands that each department must contribute its pro rata percentage for general store expenses—including losses that the credit system involves.

Four Reasons Why Our Prices are Lowest:

WE DO NOT SELL ON CREDIT
WE DO NOT GIVE DISCOUNTS
WE ARE VERY CLOSE BUYERS
WE ARE NOT EXTRAVAGANT

Other stores tax cash customers for losses sustained by delinquent credit customers. Other stores levy tribute from YOU to compensate for discounts and commissions granted a favored few. WE DO NOT. You only: my customers get the discount. WE ARE NOT EXTRAVAGANT! Do you grasp the full meaning of these words and comprehend their connection with your purses? The NOVELTY is not an Extravagant Store. The merchandise, thoughts and features are always foremost. Brilliant and tasteful decorations are costly. Theatrical glare may please the fancy, but it increases the price of goods. Our practical and conservative methods of store management are not intended so appeal to your sense of display. They are meant to accord with your ideas of economy. Many houses indulge in spectacular display AT YOUR EXPENSE. The Novelty Dry Goods Store may be comparatively plain, but values are wholesome and distinctive.

TERRITORIAL EXPANSION.

A University Student's Able Paper on the Vexed Problem.

The American people have ever in the eyes of the world been the stalwart champions of liberty. They gained their freedom by humiliating their oppressor; they took the shackles from the negroes of the south by defeating an army of their own countrymen in one of the deadliest conflicts the world has ever witnessed. In 1898 they began a war, the object of which was the liberation of a people to the southeast of our own shores; they are about to close this struggle by renouncing their most cherished principles of liberty and independence, and by enjoining the inhabitants of the islands of the far east.

What has brought about this renunciation of our cherished doctrines? Is it for the betterment of our own people in their commercial and social relations with each other and with the world at large? No. The step which we are now about to take is prompted by selfishness and a desire for conquest.

The American people have never before longed to become a nation with possessions upon which the sun could never set. We have been content to develop ourselves along the lines of social enterprise and commercial progress. Have we developed so far along these lines that there is no more room for advancement, that we now seek to extend our domain by Spanish methods?

The first movement in this direction was the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands; now we want Porto Rico and the Philippines, and we shall soon desire a part of China. Better would it have been if we had never accepted Hawaii. That was the first step to territorial greatness, which has in the past always ended in the fall and dismemberment of great nations. Take Rome for example, once but a small part of what is now Italy; her people were prosperous; her lands were fertile, for Rome was governed by the citizens of Rome. In an evil hour she dreamed of conquest. What was the result? Power to the few, poverty to the many, and, finally, Rome was dragged down to destruction by the very influences with which she surrounded herself.

There is now within our borders a great number of people who believe that the future greatness of our country depends upon the amount of territory she may acquire, and over which she may exercise her authority. Such a thought would have been cast aside with contempt by the patriots of 1776. Why then do we hesitate to renounce a policy which is foreign to the very principles upon which our government was founded? Now let us consider what will be the result of such a policy.

In order to exercise authority over distant dependencies, it is necessary to have a sufficiently strong military force stationed at each one of these dependencies. A step has already been taken in this direction by the introduction of a bill into Congress providing for an army of 100,000 soldiers. To support this vast army it has been variously estimated would cost from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 a year. The burden of this enormous expense would fall upon the people and soon there would come a protest from their ranks which would sound louder than the roar of the implements of death which they were called upon to support. Is not this the condition of affairs that we find existing in all the great military powers of Europe today?

We have magnanimously extended our sympathies to Greece, Ireland, Armenia and Cuba in their struggles for liberty and to-day we are about to cast aside these noble sentiments and to give the Filipinos their liberty at the points of our bayonets. Probably, we have changed our ideas as to what liberty really is and now we believe in liberty as set forth in the parody on "The White Man's Burden," entitled "The Brown Man's Burden," a paragraph of which reads as follows:

Pile on the brown man's burden,
Compel him to be free;
Let all your manifestoes
Reek with philanthropy.
And if with beauteous folly
He dares your will dispute,
Then in the name of freedom
Don't hesitate to shoot.

In all the great military countries, the affairs of the country are, more or less, controlled by the military authorities; and the man who is fortunate enough to be at the head of these powerful military organizations, can, if he so desires, exercise kingly and absolute power. Is this not a tendency towards imperialism, the very thought of which is detested by every American who loves the stars and stripes and all they symbolize? We should not, then, accept the theory of military men, that expansion will be a benefit to our country, they are prejudiced in the matter; it opens a field of greater activity, and ultimately, of promotion and distinction for them. We should consider whether or not the masses of our people would derive a benefit by expansion.

If such a policy were adopted, the taxes would soon become unbearable to the people, who would be forced to mortgage their homes and their farms, which would ultimately come under the control of a few vast monopolies, who would attempt to dictate to the people what they should do. Then the government would cease to be a government of the people, for the people and by the people.

What would be the condition of the laboring classes, if they were forced to compete with the cheap labor of the Asiatics? They would be reduced to

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

almost absolute servitude by the money power of our country. This would not tend to solve the question of "Capital vs. Labor," but would only tend to make its solution more difficult than it seems to be at present. We would have no more use for the products of this cheaper labor, from our colonies at a far less expense than we would be able to obtain them at home.

Do you believe for a moment that we could legislate wisely and prudently for a people of a different race and surrounded by different conditions of life? Do you think for a moment that we would cast aside the thought of what legislation is best for ourselves and make the welfare of these people our primary consideration? No! This is contrary to the unwritten laws of human nature. What alternative would we have but to allow them representation in the halls of our Congress; for governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. How would you like to have representatives from a foreign shore, tell you what was best for yourselves?

Let us not be so overcome with vanity as to forget the lessons history teaches. The Roman smiled at himself at the thought of becoming a world-power. The Saracen, conquered by self-conceit, carried the Star and Crescent from a principality to an empire to become a world-power. The Spaniard of three hundred years ago forced his way by treachery through blood until Philip II boasted that the sun never set on his possessions. What has been their fate? What will be our fate? If we permit ourselves to be overcome by the glorious thought of becoming a world-power. All this is based upon the theory that might makes right.

Away with the thought of a world-power. We have been a world-power for over 100 years. We have been a world-power in peaceful pursuits teaching all humanity the blessings and privileges of a government of the people, by the people and for the people. We have been a world power in showing to the world the doctrine of philosophy that "All men are created equal" and that "Governments are instituted among men to maintain this equality." The man who does not know that we have been a world-power since the surrender of Cornwallis' army to Washington at Yorktown has not yet learnt the lesson which the American History teaches.

If we want to become a world-power, let us send an army of school-teachers and missionaries armed with their knowledge of science, literature and christianity to do our colonizing for us. How much more benefit will be derived by the world at large by this method of colonization. How much more will our plan of colonization be appreciated by our colonies. Sir; if this plan of colonization proves to be a failure; then I can see no reason why we should not colonize by the bayonet and bullet.

Will Have a Harvard Coach.

Professor J. Varne Phillips has just received a letter from Dr. Stubbs, who is now at Pacific Grove, instructing him to confer with Captain H. Bruile of the U. of N. football team, in regard to securing the services of an eastern coach for the season of '99. The expense is limited to $600 for the season of three months, and a man from Harvard University is preferred. The football committee will take action at once and is already in correspondence with several noted eastern devotees of the spheroid.

The outlook for the '99 football season is very bright, and the committee is hopeful of securing games with the first eleven from both Stanford and the University of California.

The executive committee of the Reno Fourth of July celebration, wishes to notify all contestants for the prizes for the best decorated wheels that they must register their names and obtain their numbers on or before the third of July, from F. P. Dann at the Riverside Studio, corner Second and Virginia streets. This contest is open to all. Let this be the leading event of the parade. There is in addition to this, a prize of $5 for the most original Indian wheel. The wheel contests will be decided in front of the Riverside Hotel at 9:30 sharp on the morning of the Fourth.

The parade will start promptly at 10 o'clock ending at the Convent grounds where the triok riding and literary exercises will take place. The committee on fireworks have secured a large quantity of the famous Japanese daylight fire works, something never before exhibited in Reno. These are large bombs that are fired from mortars. They rise to a great height and then explode filling the air with grotesque figures of men, animals, dragons, etc. It will be an exhibition no one can afford to miss. For further information see the ad on another page.

She had Them Crooked.

Yesterday one of Reno's popular young ladies decided to clean up her bicycle, just for the novelty of doing it herself. By dint of much perseverance and a great deal of self encouragement she at last detached the cranks from the crank hanger. After rubbing thoroughly with tooth powder and cologne she proceeded to replace them, patting them in the hanger so both pointed the same way, for if there is any thing a woman loves it is symmetry, and symmetry is not noticeable in a bicycle when one pedal is up and another down. A friend, observing her Egyptian poster show arrangement of the propelling apparatus, kindly remedied the trouble, but not without receiving a severe lecture for laughing at her well meant efforts.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mebb., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50c. Sold by S. J. Hodgkinson Druggist.
